FUTURES LECTURE – THE FUTURE OF THE WORKPLACE

Presented by Nicola Gillen, head of Total Workplace
EMEA at Cushman & Wakefield

Wednesday 12 May 2021
6pm – 7pm

Nicola will draw from global occupier research on employee experiences of working remotely during the pandemic.

She will pivot from what the data tells us to what this could mean for how and where we will work in the future.

Nicola Gillen specialises in the relationship between design, behaviour and the built environment. An architect and author, she is widely recognised within the industry as a leading authority on workplace strategy, design and change management. She is based in London and draws on 25 years of experience delivering workplace strategy and innovation internationally.
